PP II 011	INTERNET AND PROJECT COMPETENCE	English/ German	BA/MA/ PhD	Winter	2	30			Prof. Iliana Mirtschewa, PhD	imircheva@un i-sofia.bg

Short description of the course:

Fostering the internationalization of teacher training students from currently six partner universities in USA, Japan, Germany, Poland, Bulgaria and Spain meet on an online platform and carry out small qualitative research projects, work in international groups on a topic or plan classroom projects with partner classes in different countries. The IPC project is based on an inquiry-based and constructivist understanding of learning. Coached by their teachers and student tutors the students work in international groups using web tools as e.g. wikis, chat forums or blogs. By working on topics selected from the teacher training curriculum the students improve their expertise related to the curriculum and develop awareness of cultural differences and communalities. Depending on the didactical format the students get a basic insight into research methods, gain experience in organizing project work, enhance their competence in using internet and media tools and practice their abilities in planning teaching projects and lessons and in managing the classroom.

Short description of the course (in the language of instruction):

The course contains two large parts – Human Rights Education (HRE) & Education on the Rights of the Child (ERC).

About HRE:

The course aims to form a broader common social and legal culture in the field of human rights, as well as to provide knowledge on the proper use of normative documents in this field. The course contains a system of theoretical knowledge of human rights based on current international and national legislation. The main international human rights instruments are discussed. Defining theoretical problems are generations and types of human rights, social integration and the intercultural environment. The rights and obligations of citizens under the Constitution of the Republic of Bulgaria are briefly analyzed. Human rights issues include issues of domestic violence, discrimination, refugees and trafficking in human beings.

Students acquire: propedeutical knowledge of the basic concepts of socio-legal theory; skills and competences for applying human rights regulation; knowledge of basic concepts and current issues in the field of human rights.

The course provides a systematics of interdisciplinary human rights matter from a socio-legal and pedagogical point of view.

About ERC:

The aim of the course is to form a system of theoretical and practical knowledge and competences in the interdisciplinary field of the rights of the child. The main international protection of the rights of the child is considered as a matter of social, legal and pedagogical character. It is done according to The Convention on the Rights of the Child (CRC). Special emphasis is also placed on the international theory and philosophy for the rights of the child. Child protection system is interpreted through the principles, rights, measures, international and national institutions for the rights of the child. This course forms knowledge, skills and competencies for the use of the international legal basis on the rights of the child and the national statutory framework of the rights of the child, including the following issues:

- the social, pedagogical and legal relationships between parents and children;
- the prevention of abandonment of children;
- the reintegration of children from institutions;
- the rights of the child in alimony, adoption, guardianship;
- the rights of the child in foster care system;
- the rights of the child in domestic violence and discrimination;
- the prevention of child abuse, child neglect etc.;
- the police protection of children;
- the rights of refugee children;
- the criminal liability of offender children and the special rules for minors in the Republic of Bulgaria.

The course forms a broad social and legal culture on the rights of the child.

Short description of the course: “Management” as a category first emerges in cybernetics. From a philosophical point of view, Management is a conscious grant of directions. Although this category is related to “Action” and “Movement” as categories, it has been found neither in Aristotle’s writings, nor in any later ontology or teachings regarding the categories. The issue will be presented with regard to the cybernetic, psychological and social point role of each the teacher and the student.

PP C 102	VIRTUAL STUDIO TECHNOLOGY	English	BA/MA	Winter	3	30	15		Prof. Adrian Georgiev, PhD	aggeorgiev@uni-sofia.bg

Short description of the course (in the language of instruction): Music production in the 21st century is heavily based on the use of high performance computer-based systems and software applications that not only provide digital sound processing of the highest quality, but also offer pristine emulation of tons of simple and high-end hardware devices and instruments used in the music industry throughout history. One of the aims of this development process is to enable the integration of as much musical equipment as possible into one single device, i.e. to allow a massive number of tools and functionalities to be implemented inside simple interfaces designed for the popular computer platforms. As a major highlight and one of the leading achievements in this domain, this paper takes into account the eminent Virtual Studio Technology, by reviewing its development, widespread application, and creative potential in the music production industry as an integral part of the global music industry. Keywords music production music software digital signal processing virtual instruments
